

Wallace Launches 1965 Easter Seal Campaign In Alabama March 1

Governor George Wallace met 11-year-old Tommy Bumpers, of Selma, Monday and launched the 1965 Easter Seal Campaign in Alabama.

Tommy is the state's Easter Seal Child. He will represent all children of Alabama who are crippled and need help during the campaign March 1 through Easter Sunday, April 18.

The Easter Seal Child rolled into the Governor's office in a wheelchair and presented the Society's annual report and the first sheet of Easter Seals.

Tommy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bumpers. He is a victim of cerebral palsy, and has been confined to the wheelchair since he was three. He hopes desperately to walk but doctors say he must first have surgery. A future operation is already planned for Tommy. Treatment and appliances are being given jointly by the Alabama Society and the State Crippled Children's Service.

The Alabama Society last year gave various rehabilitation services to nearly 15,000 of Alabama's crippled children.

Red Cross To Raise $2,500.00

The Elba Red Cross Chapter has kicked off a campaign to raise $2,500.00 to help finance the continued work of the organization in meeting needs of a changing community, a changing nation, and a changing world.

National theme for the 1965 Red Cross campaign for members and funds is "Join Up... Join In," according to Fred Clark, Elba campaign chairman.

Clark said the drive places a singular focus around us to recognize that the world we live in is vastly different from that of even a generation ago, he pointed out.

While changes may be more noticeable in sprawling urban areas, hardly a community has been left untouched, he said. The Elba area is no exception.

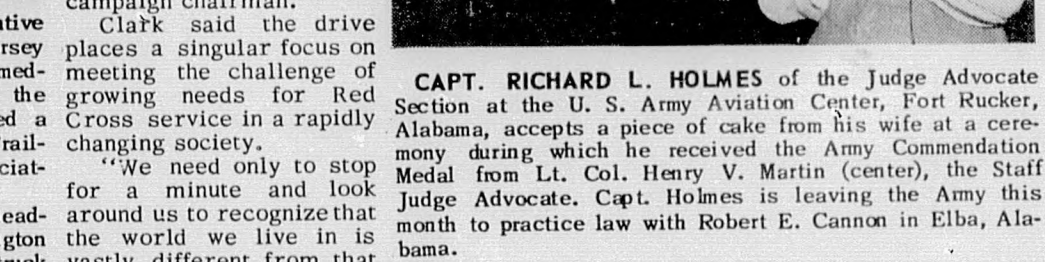

Similarly, if the Red Cross is to continue to be a dynamic force in our community, the campaign chairman stressed, "it must be equipped to serve the needs of a rapidly changing society."

There is firm evidence that the Red Cross, the nation's largest non-governmental community service institution, is gearing to meet the challenge.

Already in operation, Mr. Clark reported, is a modernized, more functional method of providing assistance to chapters, a revamping of the organization's volunteer structure introduced only months ago is receiving an enthusiastic reception.

Meanwhile, Red Cross services continue to grow, capped by new records the past fiscal year in blood donations and in certificates for training in water safety.

He cited the continuing role of the Red Cross in bringing help to members of the Armed Forces and their families wherever they are stationed, whether in Vietnam or at nearby Fort Rucker.

HAVE YOU EVER thought about how many homes and businesses will be affected if we should have another flood. The levee at Elba, has so restricted the valley cross section, it is estimated that a flood one-half the magnitude of the 1929 flood would produce a flood stage equal to the 1929 flood. Since the levee was built extensive development has occurred, and the recurrence of the 1929 flood would now affect (outside the levee) 291 homes in the city limits, with a population of approximately 2000, one large sawmill, a machine shop, an insurance building employing approximately 50 people, a motor court with 25 rooms, a lighted athletic field, a concrete building manufacturing plant, a large food store and 1,200 acres of land.

A meeting was held in Arton last week in reference to what is known as the Arton Project. A committee was appointed to promote the dam across Pea River which is included in the plan for the developing of land and water resources of the Southeast River Basin. Serving on that committee, Kysar Wilson, chairman, Doug Brown, mayor of Ozark, secretary, Elba's mayor L. P. Mullins was appointed to the Executive Board. Other members of that board are Kysar Wilson, Doug Brown, Hal Walker, banker of Brundage and the mayor of Arton. The Arton damsite, which would be to the benefit of Elba and this entire area, is located 3 miles northwest of Arton in Dale County on Pea River at mile 93. The eastern portion of the reservoir would be in Dale and Pike Counties and would extend upstream about the dam for about 13 miles to Louisville in Barbour County.

This newspaper will cover the project in more detail in a later issue.

Thoroughly enjoyed hearing Mrs. Troy Mickler tell about their childhood and court days. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Friday. She and Troy played together as children, falling in love in their early teens. They married when he was 18 and she between 15 and 16. Her father was killed, probably because of age, but later she said he would be to the benefit of Elba and this entire area, is located 3 miles northwest of Arton in Dale County on Pea River at mile 93. The eastern portion of the reservoir would be in Dale and Pike Counties and would extend upstream about the dam for about 13 miles to Louisville in Barbour County.

Mr. Collier began his program by explaining the structure of the Dorsey Corporation including the various oil enterprises in which they are directly involved. After establishing the relationship of the Dorsey Corporation to the local trailer plant he proceeded to relate a story about Dorsey Trailers from the time it was Dorsey's Marine Shop up to the present time and the prospects for the future.

Dorsey Trailers has the biggest commercial backlog in our history said Mr. Collier, even though we have seventy-two more employees than we had in 1964. Lights and water are $12,000 and direct taxes $740,000. The materials used in manufacturing last year cost over $10,000,000.

Two-thirds of the buildings used today have been built since 1950 and come very near filling the fifteen acre plant area and cause speculation as to when they will put some of the 150 welding machines in the forty acre storage lot.

Key personnel of the trailer plant were named and their jobs explained by Mr. Collier in answer to the question "I know he works at Dorsey but what does he do?"

Dorsey Trailers has been under a union contract for about two and one-half years and the fact that they have had no grievances filed against them is proof enough that they place high value upon "our people."

LIVESTOCK JUDGES from the Coffee County FFA chapters gained some valuable experience Saturday by viewing the beef cattle and hogs on the farm or in the barn, marking their score sheets and listening to their agriculture teachers explain the pros and cons of each animal. The boys first visited the farm of W. H. Taylor where they had the use of his fine Polled Hereford cattle and then they journeyed to the Frosty Mom Bunting Station where they were shown hogs of each grade and the points to look for in choosing a good hog. A team from each chapter will compete in the district judging competition at Brundage in the near future judging beef cattle, hogs and sheep.

Wallace Names Raymond Weeks Chairman For Armed Forces Day

Raymond Weeks, Birmingham, was named 1965 State Chairman for Armed Forces Day in Alabama by Governor George C. Wallace. Weeks will coordinate all activities promoting the armed services during the period from May 8 through May 10th, which has been set aside by proclamation of President Johnson to honor America's active military services with Armed Forces Day as May 15th.

Governor Wallace, in making the appointment declared, "The citizens of Alabama are privileged to join with our other forty-nine sister states in honoring our active military forces during the period set aside by the President. We have asked Mr. Raymond Weeks of Birmingham to represent me and the people of Alabama in coordinating with the military and special attention was called to the Little Theatre and its potentials for Elba people through different types of participation.

Mrs. Fred Clark, Club president, conducted the business session, during which the club voted to make a contribution to the Girl Scout Hut.

The hostesses, Mrs. Douglas Easter and Mrs. Robert Cooper, Jr., served a delightful evening meal to the following members: Mrs. Harry Boswell, Mrs. Ben Brock, Mrs. Lister Brunson, Mrs. Fred Clark, Mrs. Bancroft Cooper, Mrs. L. F. Insull, Mrs. Leroy Miller, Mrs. Wayland Sharpless, Mrs. Robert Stephens, Mrs. Bryan Taylor, Mrs. Elmer Taylor, Mrs. Oscar Vaughan, Jr., Mrs. James Williams, and guest, Miss Anelia Sasser.

Elba Benefits From Aeronautics Grants

State aid for Alabama airports, made possible by the aviation gas tax and entirely dependent on it, has provided grants through the Alabama Department of Aeronautics to cities and communities, either individually, jointly or by way of other appropriate public agencies such as counties and airport authorities.

Grants have been furnished for more than 300 projects in 94 localities serving the 101 cities and have assisted more than $22,000,000 worth of construction.

The development of an enhanced, balanced state-wide airport system has been largely dependent on state projects in the Alabama Department of Aeronautics and state funds from the aviation gas tax. Federal aid has assisted projects in only 24 localities, and over 97% of it has gone to the 11 cities with airline service. In fact, the four major cities of the state alone have received over 84% of all federal airport money for Alabama.

Federal projects are very expensive and generally loaded with excessive requirements. For small cities, they require too much cash and are too costly. Burdensome, restrictive and time consuming. State projects are economical, low in cash needs, stripped of all needless or non-essential details and confined only to basic requirements. State projects are also free of federal control, federal stipulation, federal commitments, federal burdens and federal restrictions.

Small cities have five great needs for airports: (1) Business, commercial and private flying (transient as well as local); (2) Negotiations for industrial plants; (3) Civil disasters, epidemics and personal emergencies; (4) Civil disturbances; (5) Civil Defense.

Elba is one of the towns that has benefited from grants of the Alabama Department of Aeronautics.

Post Office Promotes School Savings Program

Postmaster Robert L. Cooper said today he had just been instructed by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski to extend all cooperation possible to students, educators, bankers, and other volunteers in promoting and servicing the National School Savings program in Elba, Alabama.

I am pleased to carry out Mr. Gronouski's instructions," he said, "because any program which stimulates young Americans to save these days, is for the good of the country and itself."

The School Savings Program during World War II, he noted, provided one of our most effective instruments for teaching thrift and good citizenship.

An adequate supply of Savings Plans and books and promotional material, which he has on hand to meet the needs of the students and the community is carrying on the Stamp Consignment plan.

The Stamp Consignment plan, has in the past, greatly eased the burden on the school systems. The plan eliminates the financing problem of school savings program which our schools have had to handle.

Wildlife Week The week of March 14-20 has been proclaimed by Governor Wallace as Wildlife Week in Alabama.

Claude D. Kelley, Director of Conservation, says that the wildlife and conservation organizations of Alabama have united together and chosen as their theme for Wildlife Week "Flight Pollution of Our Waters."

Kelley urges all citizens to give special thought this week to this need and how it might be carried out since our health and economic welfare is so vitally connected with our water supply. He also states that more than ninety per cent of all new industry that will come into the State will need an abundance of clean water and unless we keep our streams clean, we cannot expect more industry to move into Alabama.

Kelley further states that water recreation in the form of swimming, boating, fishing and hunting is the major form of recreation in Alabama and unless we clean up our polluted streams and lakes and keep them clean, we will lose this invaluable asset. People will not and cannot swim or play in polluted water. Fish and wildlife cannot survive in the streams filled with municipal and industrial waste.

Alabama workmen's compensation benefits are among the highest in the South, reports Governor George C. Wallace.

ALABAMA HEART ASSOCIATION

Rheumatic Heart Disease Victims Usually Young

Rheumatic fever, which of the arteries. But, usually picks its victims among the young, can set a life-long pattern of heart disease. Rheumatic fever, itself, is an inflammatory disease age. In most cases, a patient's medical history will show he was under treatment for rheumatic fever prior to the development of rheumatic heart disease. In some cases, however, the initial attack of rheumatic fever can be so mild that it goes unnoticed and the resulting heart damage is not detected until years later.

Once a person has had his first attack of rheumatic fever, he is much more susceptible to the disease than he was before. Recurrences are a constant menace, and they may convert what originally was a mild heart condition to a severe one.

The heart damage following rheumatic fever is usually the result of inflammation of the valves of the heart. This inflammation leads to scarring which may cause a narrowing of the opening of the valves, thus impeding the flow of blood to the heart. In other cases, it may produce a leakage of the valves which cause the heart to be overworked and inefficient.

The rheumatic process also may cause some inflammation and scarring of the heart muscle which, if severe, may weaken it. Sometimes the membrane around the heart also becomes inflamed, but permanent damage to this membrane is rare.

Interference with normal functions of the heart from damaged valves produces certain symptoms. They usually begin with easy fatigue and a decreasing ability to exercise. They progress to shortness of breath after mild exercise, and later to shortness of breath even while resting. Sometimes, the constricted valves cause a build up of pressure in the lungs, coughing and bloody sputum may result.

Most of these symptoms also can be produced by other diseases as well as by some other forms of heart disease. Rheumatic heart disease can be diagnosed with certainty by a physician.

In some cases, a definite diagnosis can be made by studying the patient's history and by examination aided by electrocardiogram and chest x-ray. More complicated cases may require special x-rays, special cardograms, recordings of heart sounds and heart movements as well as how the breathing and breathing tests. Other studies may include tests of how the breathing and heart rate respond to various degrees of exercise.

Heart catheterization may be used to pinpoint valve damage and determine its severity. In this test, a tiny plastic tube is inserted into a blood vessel of the arm and pas-is to prevent recurrences must be continued throughout life. Alabama workmen's compensation benefits are patient has had rheumatic heart involvement, precautions to prevent recurrences of rheumatic fever Relations.

Today it is possible to repair one or more valves safely, or if they are beyond repair, to replace them with artificial valves. One constant menace to the person who has rheumatic heart disease is the possibility of infection in the damaged valves. If this happens, it can convert a relatively mild form of the disease to a potentially fatal one. For this reason, whenever dental work or even minor surgery is being done, it is important to take antibiotics to prevent infection from occurring in the heart.

Always, the main objective in treating rheumatic heart disease patients

Plans have been developed in cooperation with the tractor and implement dealers in Coffee County to have a two-hour meeting in the National Guard Armory in New Brockton on equipment for putting down pre-emergence and post-emergence on cotton, peanuts, and corn.

The meeting has been set for Thursday, March 25, 9:00 a.m., in the New Brockton National Guard Armory. All farmers interested in learning what equipment is necessary and how to fix sprayers are invited to attend.

As a first step in organizing the Coffee County Agricultural Suppliers

Group, Roy Ellis, chairman of the Coffee County RAD group, has suggested a meeting of the Technical Action Panel and the chairman of the RAD Committee, Members of the Technical Action Panel are E. L. Dean, County ASOS Office Manager; Bill Ray, FFA Supervisor; G. L. Edwards, soil conservationist; and this agent.

Carl Brooks of the Calvary Community sent some sick pigs to the Diagnostic Laboratory in Elba last week. More and more of Coffee County's farmers are recognizing the importance of the services of the Plans are being made for the Second Annual Coffee County 4-H, FFA, and FFA Fat Calf Show and Sale. The Coffee County Cattlemen's Association and the business people of the county are certainly to be commended for their part in this annual event. Such an event could not be possible without their support.

The Cattlemen's Association Annual Spring Sale will be held April 7 at the Enterprise Livestock Barn along with the calf show and sale. All livestock producers are invited to bring their cattle to this sale.

Both Mr. Speed and I will attend this sale. If there is any way that either one of us can help prospective buyers, please contact us.

E. P. Henderson, of Enterprise, Route 1, called the other day to report that some of his pine trees were being damaged to the extent that when a strong wind comes along, they blow over.

I checked Henderson's pines, and this damage is being done by the black turpentine beetle. You cannot do anything about the damage already done, but to keep this insect and other insects from attacking small pines, spray with a mixture of 1 pound of 50% wettable DDT and 1/4 pound of 25% wettable Lindane per 25 gallons of water. Do this twice about two weeks apart and this should give good control. Do not prune or do any cutting operations before November 1 or after February 1.

Plans are shaping up nicely for the organizational meeting of the Coffee County Hog Producers Association which is set for April 8. This group will be formed for the purpose of promoting a more profitable hog production program in Coffee County. If you are interested, get in touch with Mr. Speed or with me right away.

Coffee County beef cattle folks who are interested in buying a production tested bull are invited to attend the annual Auburn Bull Sale which is to be held Friday, March 26, at the Livestock Arena in Auburn.

Hayward Taylor of Elba has seven outstanding bulls entered in this sale. Several breeds will be offered for sale. This may be the last year when real good quality bulls will be selling as inexpensive as they probably will be at this particular sale.

Both Mr. Speed and I will attend this sale. If there is any way that either one of us can help prospective buyers, please contact us.

There are five major ways to increase net farm income. First, develop an operation that fully uses all family labor throughout the year. Second, learn to use credit efficiently. Third, keep complete and accurate records of the farm business. Fourth, buy machinery that can be used on enough acres to cover ownership costs, and fifth, when capital is short, avoid high risk operations.

Take soil samples from bermuda, bahia, and other summer grass sods so you can keep them fertile right for top production. Grasses grown alone require nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Spring is the best time to fertilize summer grasses that are not grown with a legume.

If grass is grown in combination with a legume and phosphorus and potassium were applied last fall as recommended, by soil test, additional phosphorus and potassium will not be required. If on the other hand a poor growth of legumes was obtained during the winter and spring months, an application of nitrogen may be required for the grass to make good growth.

The Soil Testing Laboratory recommends a fertilizer rate based on soil test and plant needs per 1000 square feet. Before applying fertilizer to the lawn, measure the area and determine the square footage included in lawn grass and apply the amount of fertilizer recommended by soil test.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn when grass is dry. Fertilizer applied when the leaves are wet will cling to the leaves and cause a temporary yellowing. If fertilizer is applied when the grass is damp, turn on the sprinkler system to wash the fertilizer off the plants.

Time is running short to fertilize pecan trees. Pecan experts recommend fertilizing bearing trees, 20 years old or more with eight to ten pounds of nitrogen per tree in early spring. If a winter legume is grown in the orchard, apply the phosphorus and potassium in the fall.

When no legume is grown, use two pounds of

River Project Planned

The proposed project of a dam and reservoir, access roads, and recreation areas of Pea River above Arton, Alabama, in the Choctawhatchee - Perdido basin is now being planned. The principal streams in this basin area are Pea River, Choctawhatchee, Yellow, Blackwater, Escambia-Concuch, and Perdido Rivers. The Pea River dam and reservoir would provide benefits for recreation, fish and wildlife, and most important, flood control. This project is known as the Arton project.

The dam would be an earthen structure with a side channel spillway. At normal full pool the reservoir would have an area of 5,000 acres. Flood control storage behind normal pool and spillway crest would reduce flooding at Elba and Geneva, Alabama, and Caryville, Florida.

The area which would be inundated by the reservoir is mostly wooded and relocations would be required for fishing, picnicking, swimming, boating, camping, and sight-seeing and would satisfy requirements for about 45,000 user-days of fishing and 350,000 user-days of recreation. The creation of a large fresh-water lake in the area, where none now exists, would result in considerable homestead development areas around the lakeshore.

Barbour County has been declared a distressed area by reason of low farm income in the county. The construction of the dam and reservoir would provide employment, sales of materials and equipment, increased housing and food service opportunities, and many other benefits during the installation period to Barbour, Pike, Coffee and surrounding counties.

The Crestview dam site is located on the Yellow River about four miles west of Crestview in Oklahoma County, Florida, and about two miles upstream from the bridge crossing the river on U.S. Highway 90. The reservoir would extend upstream from the dam about 18 miles, of which would be in Alabama.

The proposed Crestview project consists of a dam

ROTARY SPEAKER for Monday, March 22, was Mrs. N. O. Patterson of Enterprise who is a refugee from the communist dominated country of Estonia.

Mrs. Patterson gave an interesting and informative talk on how her native country was taken over by the communists and the methods they used to instill terror and fear into everyone to the point that a person would fabricate a story about the wrongdoings of a friend to protect himself and/or his children.

According to Mrs. Patterson everyone should be alert to the dangers of Communism because in the three Baltic countries including Estonia the ordinary citizens didn't even know what was going on until they heard "rumors" the next day that the mayor had been arrested!

Shown in this picture are Charlie Hayes, program chairman; Mrs. Vela Paschal of Enterprise who introduced the speaker; Mrs. Patterson and K. W. Anderson, Elba Rotary President.

Beware Of Medicine Quacks

Gone are the days of the old-time medicine show promoting cure-alls and youth-restoring tonics. But the medicine man is still with us. Today he is a pseudoscientific salesman who dances on a thin line between fact and fiction. He sells his worthless wares to the tune of $1 billion per year. But the toll in shattered hopes, progressive illness and loss of life caused by listening to the quack and delaying proper medical diagnosis and treatment cannot be estimated in dollars, warns Doctor Ira L. Myers, State Health Officer, and Doctor C. D. McLeod, of the Coffee County Department of Health.

The modern medicine man wears many masks. He may hide behind the cloak of impressive-sounding titles of quasi-medical degrees and diplomas. Frequently he uses an electrically operated device for diagnosis and treatment. These devices, which look
